How to Contribute

This is a rough (but distributable) start to an annotated bibliography of works created using XLingPaper. It is intended to be circulated for comment and feedback. If you are an author who has used XLingPaper, please consider submitting your content to this work.

The latest version of this bibliography can be found on Github¹ and in Zenodo.² New versions are released on Github which automatically updates Zenodo. It can be referenced as an unpublished archival manuscript. Something like the following:

Paterson III, Hugh J., (Compiler). 2021. Some Works Created in XLingPaper. Zenodo, ms. doi:

Contributions via Github can occur as pull requests. Alternatively, email Hugh Paterson III a reference to be added in an XLingPaper document. An item in a references section is sufficient, so that he can copy and paste into the existing document. (Annotations can also be contributed.) Structural changes to the bibliography will be considered based on feedback.

1 Annotated Bibliography

1.1 Purpose

XLingPaper has been around since 2001 and has been the tool of choice for those who have sought solutions beyond the performance or limits of: MS Word, TeX, Markdown, OpenOffice, Pages, Pandoc, Scrivener and a variety of other tools. The scope of the bibliography is comprehensive—if it was built with XLingPaper, it can be included here. The purpose of this bibliography is to use XLingPaper to create a document which will help users identify how XLingPaper has been used to create works like they might want to create, i.e., to exemplify the diverse utility of XLingPaper. Therefore, the annotations note the unique typography, document structure, and content formats rather than any discussion, argumentation, or theory. To date the primary academic discourse presenting XLingPaper has been published as Simons & Black (2008), Black (2009), Black & Black (2012).

1.2 Organization

This bibliography has the same data presented in three layouts because readers might be interested in exploring the references in any one of the three manners: By Type, By Feature, By Author.

2 By Type

Items are listed in chronological order oldest first, newest last. The types follow those presented by Kelsky (2015:158). That is, Books, Edited Volumes, Refereed Journal Articles, Book Chapters, Conference Proceedings, Encyclopedia Entries, Book Reviews, Manuscripts, Web-based Publications, Other kinds of publications. We are also unaware of any Conference Proceedings, Encyclopedia Entries, or Book Reviews which have been authored using XLingPaper. Therefore, these sections have been omitted.

XLingPaper has seen frequent use by the authors of M.A. theses. Those presented here were defended at one of two institutions: the Graduate Institute of Linguistics (GIAL) – now Dallas International University; and the University of North Dakota. The extensive use of XLingPaper by students at the University of North Dakota program can in part be explained by the fact that both Andrew Black (software author) and Steve Marlett (advocate extraordinaire) were faculty at the University of North Dakota.

XLingPaper also has the ability to export items to HTML. Andy Black has made extensive use of this feature to create web exports from XLingPaper documents related to the computer applications he develops. Matthew Lee has built upon this concept with the publication of XLingPaper content to web mediums in a different way. Lee manages the entire content of a bi-lingual website focused on user documentation and user training for software in XLingPaper.

2.1 Books

Buck, Marjorie J. 2018. Gramática del amuzgo Xochistlahuaca, Guerrero. (Serie de gramáticas de lenguas indígenas de México №16.) Tlalpan, Ciudad de México, México: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, A.C. [SIL International in Mexico]. <https://www.sil.org/resources/archives/75518>

2.1.1 Re-Publications

Rastorgueva, V. S., A. A. Kerimova, A. K. Mamedzade, L. A. Pireiko & D. I. Edel'man. (Editor) Ron M. Lockwood. 2012. The Gilaki Language. (Acta Universitatis Upsaliensis; Studia Iranica Upsaliensis №19.) Uppsala, Sweden: Acta Universitatis Upsaliensis. <http://urn.kb.se/resolve?urn=urn:nbn:se:uu:diva-182789>

This is a translation of the original book entitled: Giljanskij Jazyk. This publication uses color extensively. It uses no less than 8 different colors each with a semantic meaning. There is no clear table for the semantic meanings of the color but usage is consistent throughout the work – thanks to XLingPaper and the editor. This work also has 20 interlinear glossed texts, which are discussed and linked throughout the book. It uses mostly Latin script with one small word in an Arabic script.

Bartholomew, Doris A. (Author), Louise C. Schoenhals (Author) & Thomas L Willett (Editor). 2019. Bilingual Dictionaries for Indigenous Languages. 2 edn. Tlalpan, Ciudad de México, México: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, A. C. [SIL International in Mexico]. <https://mexico.sil.org/resources/archives/80401>

2.1.2 Computer Application Documentation

Andy has written several computer applications, including: XlingPaper, Asheninka, and a Morphological parser used within FLEx. He has turned to XlingPaper to manage and publish his user documentation materials.

Black, H Andrew. 2014. A Conceptual Introduction to Morphological Parsing for Stage 1 of the FieldWorks Language Explorer. SIL International. <http://downloads.sil.org/FieldWorks/WW-ConceptualIntro/ConceptualIntroduction.htm> (2020-11-10.)

2.2 Edited Volumes

We are unaware of any Edited Volumes which have been completely typeset with XlingPaper. Though both re-published books had an editorial contribution. In some ways the Zapotec Grammar Files and Los Archivos Lingüísticos Me'phaa are like an edited volume but they are not presented as such and were not typeset using XlingPaper's book structure.

2.3 Periodicals & Journal Articles

Items published as part of a series appear here. This includes working papers, journal articles, and non-book items in a periodical series.

2.5 Manuscripts, Discussion papers, and limited distribution Drafts

This section lists several manuscripts (documents which are still in preparation or have yet to see formal publication). It also lists discussion papers including white papers. Some authors have indicated a willingness to include drafts even though they have seen limited distribution up to this point (generally I would call these manuscripts).

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2012. Some Current Challenges using the ISO 639-3 Standard. Dallas, Texas: SIL International, ms.

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2013. Recommendations for SIL Language Learning Products — Version 0.8. Dallas, Texas: SIL International, ms.

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2015. XlingPaper, GPS Services, and the future of SIL Digital Publishing — Version 0.1. Dallas, Texas: SIL International, ms.

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2020. Text input issues for under-resourced languages: with special notes on Eastern Dan. Draft, ms.

This work uses Persian, Japanese, Latin, and Cyrillic scripts. It also contains an appendix which is an annotated bibliography.

Paterson III, Hugh J. & Marie Pons. 2020. Chepang Annotated Bibliography for Interdisciplinary Studies. Draft, ms.

This annotated bibliography is notable for its size (over 500 items) and for its use of Greek, Devanagari, Latin, and Cyrillic scripts.

Paterson III, Hugh J., (Compiler). 2021. Some Works Created in XLingPaper. Zenodo, ms. doi:

This annotated bibliography pulls together a list of works created by using XLingPaper — it is the one you are currently reading. It is designed to mail out to people and ask them to reply with content that can be added to the annotated bibliography.

2.6 Websites

2.6.1 XLingPaper

Black, H Andrew. 2020. XLingPaper User Documentation. <http://software.sil.org/downloads/r/xlingpaper/resources/documentation/xxe7/UserDocXMLmind.htm> (2020-11-10.)

Black, H Andrew & Matthew Lee. 2020. XLingPaper Publisher Style Sheet User Documentation. <http://software.sil.org/downloads/r/xlingpaper/resources/documentation/xxe7/UserDocXMLmind.htm> (2020-11-10.)

2.6.2 Paratext

The Paratext Manuals, both their English and French content, as well as the online manifestation in websites like outilingua.net and lingtran.net as the manifestation in PDF formats are all maintained in a single XLingPaper Document. XLingPaper enables the management of multiple output formats along with parallel versions in different languages.

Beadle, Jennie & Matthew Lee. 2020. Paratext 8 Manual – in English. SIL International. <https://lingtran.net> (2020-11-10.)

The websites outilingua.net and lingtran.net are both run tikiwiki as their core software. The content when it is refreshed is uploaded as a tikiwiki bundel. There are technical challenges in tikiwiki with managing images with a workflow which refreshes periodically. To overcome this challenges manages are hosted on a site like github.com and are linked to the accessible repository of images.

Beadle, Jennie & Matthew Lee. 2020. Paratext 8 Manual – in French. SIL International. <https://outilingua.net> (2020-11-10.)

Beadle, Jennie & Matthew Lee. 2020. Paratext 9 Manual – in English. SIL International. <https://lingtran.net> (2020-11-10.)

Beadle, Jennie & Matthew Lee. 2020. Paratext 9 Manual – in French. SIL International. <https://outilingua.net> (2020-11-10.)

2.6.3 FLEx Morphological Parser

Black, H Andrew. 2014. A Conceptual Introduction to Morphological Parsing for Stage 1 of the FieldWorks Language Explorer. SIL International. <http://downloads.sil.org/FieldWorks/WW-ConceptualIntro/ConceptualIntroduction.htm> (2020-11-10.)

University of Hawai'i at Mānoa. <https://hughandbecky.us/Becky-CV/talk/2021-building-multilingual-comparable-corpora>

This is an example of a conference abstract with a personalized header.

2.8 Presentations

Kent Rasmussen has a blog post explaining how to create presentation slides with XLPaper³. This has the advantage of keeping presentation content and examples congruent with what might be in a thesis or journal article. As far as I know he is the only one who is doing this, but I would love to hear about more cases.

Rasmussen, Kent. 2015. Language Development: Developing Communities. The UT Arlington Annual Celebration of Excellence by Students. University of Texas at Arlington, Arlington, Texas. March 25.

Rasmussen, Kent. 2015. A First Look at Mbo [zmw] (D. R. Congo). 46th Annual Conference on African Linguistics. University of Oregon, Eugene, March 26–28.

Rasmussen, Kent. 2016. Ndaka [ndk] (D.R. Congo): Another Bantu D30 Language with Nine Vowels and Depressor Consonants. 47th Annual Conference on African Linguistics. University of California, Berkeley, March 23–26.

Rasmussen, Kent. 2016. The Functional Load of Tone in Bantu D30. 8th Annual DFW Metroplex Linguistics Conference. The Graduate Institute of Applied Linguistics, Dallas, TX. September 24.

2.9 Textbooks

Marlett, Stephen A. 2014. Phonology From the Ground Up: The Basics. Dallas, TX: SIL International. https://arts-sciences.und.edu/academics/summer-institute-of-linguistics/teaching-linguistics/_files/docs/marlett-2014-phonology-student.pdf (2021-05-01.)

Besides being a textbook, this document is notable for its use of the content control feature. The author has used content control to produce several versions including: Teacher material, Developer material, Teacher edition, and a Student edition.

2.10 Ph.D Dissertations

Ebarb, Kristopher J. 2014. Tone and variation in Idakho and other Luhya varieties. University of Indiana Ph.D. dissertation. <https://pqdtopen.proquest.com/doc/1625743679.html?FMT=ABS>

Just over 950 language paradigms showing tonal variations. The author used Inkscape to draw formal diagrams illustrating things like associations.

Rasmussen, Kent. 2018. A Comparative Tone Analysis of Several Bantu D30 Languages (DR Congo). University of Texas Arlington Ph.D. dissertation. <http://hdl.handle.net/10106/27483>

A beautiful use of figures (see figures 13 & 17), examples with tone bar notation (see example 9), tables with notes (table 4 & 5). Includes a Glosses index and a segmental forms index.

Penner, Kevin L. 2019. Prosodic structure in Ixtayutla Mixtec: Evidence for the foot. University of Alberta Ph.D. dissertation. <https://era.library.ualberta.ca/items/40b96306-3b73-4fd5-b1cf-8fc770bb609e> doi:10.13140/RG.2.2.28786.96965

The level of detail for many phonetically transcribed words is notable. Many include tonal register, nasalization, pitch, and glotalization, e.g., sú²má¹.

2.11 M.A. Theses

Havlicek, Amy Ruth. 2009. Alternations in Murui: A Morphological Approach. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/2229>

Wood, Joyce Kathleen. 2012. Valence-Increasing Strategies in Urim Syntax. Graduate Institute of Applied Linguistics M.A. thesis. https://www.diu.edu/documents/theses/Wood_Joyce-thesis.pdf (2020-07-04.)

Kim, Deborah. 2014. Subordination in Sarikoli. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/1672>

Carlson, Bethany Winter. 2015. Case and Pragmatic Status Markers in Embera Katío. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/1752>

Reeves, Hannah Joy. 2015. Falam immigrants in America: Motivations for language use, maintenance, and shift. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/1827>

Grosso, Tamara Michelle. 2017. Referring Forms and Cognitive Status in Non-Narrative American Sign Language Texts. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/2221>

Méndez-Hord, Esteban I. 2017. Tone in Acatlán Mixtec Nouns. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/2296>

Uses glosses in tables, and the use of phonetic bar notation for tone melodies as described in Paterson (2015), and used extensively by Keith Snider, Kent Rasmussen, and others.

Cline, Laura J. 2018. Some Features of Participant Reference in Xochapa Mixtec. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/2395>

Mong, Megan Lois. 2018. Modest Dress as Literacy Practice in English-Speaking Conservative Mennonite Groups. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/2290>

Includes multiple photographs which are referred to throughout the work.

Moffit, Larinda. 2019. Constituent Order And Participant Reference In Napo Quichua Narrative Discourse. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/2474>

Lamicela, Andrew Charles. 2020. Distinguishing Passive from MP2-marked Middle in Koine Greek. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/3277>

Uses Greek script in interlinear examples.

Lepage, Sarah Gloria. 2020. The Phonology Of Mbatl. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/3379>

Miller, Emily R. 2020. Information Structure in Soumraie (Somrai), an Eastern Chadic language. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/3288>

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2021. Language Archive Records: Interoperability of Referencing Practices and Metadata Models. Grand Forks, North Dakota: University of North Dakota M.A. thesis.

This work is notable for its inclusion of syntax-highlighted computer code in figures. It was accomplished by printing the computer code to PDF first and then including the PDF as a figure.

3 By Feature

In this section of the Bibliography we Highlight some publications and projects which use specific features of XlingPaper.

3.1 Custom Header

Pages 339–347 present an annotated bibliography divided by section.

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2020. Text input issues for under-resourced languages: with special notes on Eastern Dan. Draft, ms.

This work uses Persian, Japanese, Latin, and Cyrillic scripts. It also contains an appendix which is an annotated bibliography.

Paterson III, Hugh J. & Marie Pons. 2020. Chepang Annotated Bibliography for Interdisciplinary Studies. Draft, ms.

This annotated bibliography is notable for its size (over 500 items) and for its use of Greek, Devanagari, Latin, and Cyrillic scripts.

Paterson III, Hugh J., (Compiler). 2021. Some Works Created in XLingPaper. Zenodo, ms. doi:

This annotated bibliography pulls together a list of works created by using XLingPaper — it is the one you are currently reading. It is designed to mail out to people and ask them to reply with content that can be added to the annotated bibliography.

3.3 Texts

Rastorgueva, V. S., A. A. Kerimova, A. K. Mamedzade, L. A. Pireiko & D. I. Edel'man. (Editor) Ron M. Lockwood. 2012. The Gilaki Language. (Acta Universitatis Upsaliensis; Studia Iranica Upsaliensia №19.) Uppsala, Sweden: Acta Universitatis Upsaliensis. <http://urn.kb.se/resolve?urn=urn:nbn:se:uu:diva-182789>

Pages 319–338 present interlinear texts.

3.4 Interlinear Glosses

Lamicela, Andrew Charles. 2020. Distinguishing Passive from MP2-marked Middle in Koine Greek. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/3277>

Uses Greek script in interlinear examples.

3.5 Tabular Data

Rasmussen, Kent. 2018. A Comparative Tone Analysis of Several Bantu D30 Languages (DR Congo). University of Texas Arlington Ph.D. dissertation. <http://hdl.handle.net/10106/27483>

A beautiful use of figures (see figures 13 & 17), examples with tone bar notation (see example 9), tables with notes (table 4 & 5). Includes a Glosses index and a segmental forms index.

Marlett, Stephen A. 2011. Data sources. In Stephen A Marlett, Cheryl A Black and H Andrew Black, eds. The Zapotec Grammar Files, n.p. SIL-Mexico Electronic Working Papers №1. Mexico City, Mexico: Instituto Lingüístico de Verano, A.C. [SIL International in Mexico]. <https://www.sil.org/resources/archives/60560>

This is an interesting way to create a table view for resources which relate to a specific language.

3.6 Phonologies

Rasmussen, Kent. 2018. A Comparative Tone Analysis of Several Bantu D30 Languages (DR Congo). University of Texas Arlington Ph.D. dissertation. <http://hdl.handle.net/10106/27483>

A beautiful use of figures (see figures 13 & 17), examples with tone bar notation (see example 9), tables with notes (table 4 & 5). Includes a Glosses index and a segmental forms index.

3.7 Scripts

Lamicela, Andrew Charles. 2020. Distinguishing Passive from MP2-marked Middle in Koine Greek. University of North Dakota M.A. thesis. <https://commons.und.edu/theses/3277>

Uses Greek script in interlinear examples.

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2020. Text input issues for under-resourced languages: with special notes on Eastern Dan. Draft, ms.

This work uses Persian, Japanese, Latin, and Cyrillic scripts. It also contains an appendix which is an annotated bibliography.

Paterson III, Hugh J. & Marie Pons. 2020. Chepang Annotated Bibliography for Interdisciplinary Studies. Draft, ms.

This annotated bibliography is notable for its size (over 500 items) and for its use of Greek, Devanagari, Latin, and Cyrillic scripts.

3.8 Content Control Documents

3.10 Curriculum Vitae

Paterson III, Hugh J. 2021. Curriculum Vitae. Personal Website, ms. https://hughandbecky.us/Hugh-CV/cv/2020_12_USletter_Hugh_Paterson_CV.pdf

This is an example of a Curriculum Vitae (CV)/Resume built with XLingPaper.

3.11 Output Formats

XLingPaper has several main output formats: HTML, PDF via XeTeX, PDF via RenderX (XSL-FO), ePub, MS Word, and Open Office.

3.11.1 HTML

Black, H Andrew. 2014. A Conceptual Introduction to Morphological Parsing for Stage 1 of the FieldWorks Language Explorer. SIL International. <http://downloads.sil.org/FieldWorks/WW-ConceptualIntro/ConceptualIntroduction.htm> (2020-11-10.)

3.11.2 PDF via XeTeX

Most documents in this Bibliography are created using the XeTeX process. We do not list them independently.

3.11.3 PDF via RenderX

It would be nice to point to one of these and explain why the RenderX output was chosen.

3.11.4 ePub

Does anyone use this and in what cases? I haven't heard of any cases but would love to hear of some... Also which version of the ePub standard was used?

3.11.5 MS Word

For people who have used this feature it would be great to hear what your experience was like. What was the social situation which led you down the path of using this feature and how did you interact with the document produced?

This book uses no less than 4 colors of text. Like many XlingPaper documents it makes extensive use of blue and green contrasts. Some pages have more blue and green than black. It also has a nice annotated bibliography in the back. The annotated bibliography uses the XlingPaper annotation elements for automatic styling. Much like this document.

Marlett, Stephen A. 2017. Discourse analysis and information structure studies of Otomanguean languages: An annotated bibliography. SIL-Mexico Electronic Working Papers №21. <https://sil.org/resources/archives/69066>

This paper presents an annotated bibliography of studies about discourse analysis or information structure of languages in various branches of the Otomanguean language family. It is organized around the topics presented in Dooley & Levinsohn (2001). It is notable for its scope in covering an entire language family. The author structures the document by theoretical points and then describes which studies cover those points. In this way the document is structured much more like a typical XLPaper article rather than relying on the annotationRef elements.
